“ I did not realize that Mr. Hager had passed. He was my accounting teacher way back in 1990. We became quick friends. I remember attending a Pink Floyd show with him and later my boyfriend and I went to see Robert Plant with him at Tower Theater! Crazy. Appreciated his quirkiness. A friend - Dana Atticks

“ My fondest memory of Chris is the many Christmases he went with my husband, Kim, to pick out our Christmas tree. Once they got it home and set up, we ordered Tummy Stuffers and pizza from Sam's. They then watched, listening of course to music, while my daughter and I decorated the tree. For many years he was a very important part of this Christmas tradition. Holly Kleimo

“ Christopher was a devoted son yo his mother, the late Helen Hager. She, in turn, was a loving mother of her only child.

Christopher loved his music and I will remember speaking with him often about the concerts he attended.

A very intellectual many of many diverse issues. He will be missed.

“ Christopher, as his mother addressed him, and I had the distinction of likely being the most over-educated clerks that then Pensupreme had working in one of their grocerettes in the very early 80s. Our chatter over the rhythmic sound of the slicer was always eclectic - more of an exchange two young people might have in a college library.

Our paths again crossed as members of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church. Chris always sat in the front when Ptr. Larry Lehman preached. Later he had a regular Sunday pew in the very back of the west aisle.

After the service we'd chat, often about his days with the band but, more often about his cats - and each one's habits and personalities.

And then, Chris stopped coming to Trinity. Our meanderings never had us bumping into each other again. So, I remember Christopher as a talker with an eclectic number of interests and most certainly a divine dad to his feline family.
